

Broadway Kidz Powers

Audition Sides

SIDE 1: Batman and Security Guard

Security Guard can be played by girl or boy. Batman by a boy. Any Age.

BATMAN: Diana! Wait up. I need to ask you something.

BATMAN tries to follow her past the security point.

SECURITY GUARD: Hold on a minute, pal. Coat check.

BATMAN: But I don't have any superpowers. Just let me go ask Wonder Woman ou...something. She hasn't been returning my texts.

SECURITY GUARD: If you don't have any powers, what are you even doing here?

BATMAN: I'm Batman. I have a superior intellect, a sense of revenge and tons of money.

SECURITY GUARD: Well, just scan your hand then.

BATMAN: (Scanning his hand) But it won't do anything atDuuuuuuuuuhhhhhhhhh!!!!

He just stands there with a vacuous expression.

SECURITY GUARD: Are you OK? Batman?

BATMAN: Call me Brucey.

SECURITY GUARD: Um, are you OK? You seem less intelligent than you did before? What's 2 + 2?

BATMAN: Wonder Woman...

SECURITY GUARD: What about her?

Sides for Kids Under 8

SUPERMAN: I don't think there will be any need for that. I'm awesome. Everybody knows that. Truth, justice the American way. Just listen to my superentourage. They'll tell you.

WONDER WOMAN: That's Ms. Woman. But you can call me Wonder, if I can skip the coat check. This is not going to go well.

Side 2

Ned (8-12), Bo (11-14), Lana, Lucy and Lilly, the cheerleaders of sin (11-14)

NED: ...and I can summon snakes and then I poke my sword in the ground like this and I call rocks out of the ground.

LILLY: No offense, but that's, like, really dumb.

NED: Do you even know what "no offense" means?

LANA: And what is taped to your back?

NED: Wings. Drago has wings, obviously

LUCY: You're kind of weird.

LILLY: Just kind of?

NARRATOR: And he definitely does not have the power to impress his fellow first graders.

BO: Yeah. Can you believe this guy? This Drago dude isn't even a real character.

LANA: Yeah. That is definitely the problem here.

BO: Seriously. It isn't from Marvel Universe or DC. Not even Nintendo. It's like he...made it up.

LUCY: The problem is he's wearing a costume to school!

LILLY: The problem is he's wearing that nerd costume at all.

BO: Right. Heh heh, He's dumb.

LANA: Yeah. Maybe you should punch him in the face.

BO: I don't think he's that bad.

LUCY: No. He is. Go on punch him.

BO: OK. If you say so.

Side 3

For Actors 14 and up.

DRIVER'S ED TEACHER: Watch OUT!!!!!!

CRUISE: Oh. Sorry.

DRIVER'S ED TEACHER: Cruise, you need to pay attention.

CRUISE: I am. I'm just so excited to become a chick magnet when I can actually drive.

PHOEBE: (Clears her throat loudly.)

DRIVER'S ED TEACHER: Just don't let them hear you call them chicks. Now turn on your signal, check your blind spot and slowly pull out onto the road.

CRUISE: (Turning on the signal, but not doing much else) I'm totally paying attention. Well, I'm going to pay attention starting...now.

DRIVER'S ED TEACHER: No. Not yet.

CRUISE: And my grandpa is giving me his car. Some people might say it's old, but I call it a classic and it's really cool.

DRIVER'S ED TEACHER: Focus, Cruise!

CRUISE: I am. But I'm going to soup it up and make it a total chick magnet.

PHOEBE: Again with that phrase.

DRIVER'S ED TEACHER: OK, you're clear as soon as she passes us.

PHOEBE: Mr. Carter, I refuse to be referred to as a small bird.

DRIVER'S ED TEACHER: Blind Spot! Blind SPot!

CRUISE: Oh yeah, the babes are going to flock around me when I can drive for real.

PHOEBE: I am not a bird or an infant. Mr. Carter, please make him stop saying such misogynist things.

DRIVER'S ED TEACHER: I'm pretty sure he wasn't talking about you.

PHOEBE: And that makes it OK?